4	More businesses have begun adopting a policy to reduce wrapping materials. This approach helps lower the overall environmental impact and can ease the financial burden on producers. However, with reduced wrapping materials, products could suffer quality issues due to damage during transportation. Also, some people find having to pay for wrapping annoying and inconvenient.
5	I think this is a good idea. First, setting clear goals when starting new activities helps people use their time efficiently. When they know what they want to achieve, they can plan what to do and avoid wasting time. Second, clear goals make people stay motivated. This means they can keep working hard even when unexpected difficulties arise, because they know exactly what they are working toward. Therefore, I think it is a good idea to set clear goals when starting new activities.
